

Courting Disaster (1/19/23)

After months of investigation, the Supreme Court has admitted that they have no clue who was responsible for the leak of the draft Roe document.

It looks that they have thrown in the towel and it's back to business as usual. There is no way that the American public can let this stand. The entire credibility of the court is at risk, as there is already a growing mistrust developing. Clerks and judges cannot be expected to be the same. The Court will not be able to go back to BAU. It will be harder for clerks to work together for fear that their comments might become public. And even the judges might be reluctant to share informal opinions as they review cases.

The Court tried and failed, now it's time for the FBI to get involved. The credibility of one of the most important institutions is on the line.